

dition to which you are now going to retire, all the blessings of domestic felicity and perfect health.

Such are the sentiments, and such the sincere wishes of every one of the members of the diplomatic body, whose interpreter it is my happy lot and my honor to be on the present occasion.

To which General Jackson responded in the following words:—

Gentlemen:—I receive with great sensibility this manifestation of personal kindness from the diplomatic body. It is particularly grateful to me to know that my constant desire to observe towards all of you that courtesy, which was due to your representative and personal characters, has been felt and understood. I thank God, that my country, during my administration of its affairs, has maintained its peaceful relations with yours, and I feel assured that they will long endure, under the general conviction that reciprocal justice is the duty of nations in their intercourse with each other.

For your prosperity in this world you have my best wishes, and for your happiness in that to which, in the order of nature, I must expect to go before you, you shall have my fervent prayers.

The diplomatic body then made their congratulations to the new President in the ladies drawing room of the President's house. On this occasion the Minister of Spain was again the organ of communication, and delivered, in a happy manner, a short complimentary speech, to which the President replied as follows:—

Sir—I am deeply affected by the congratulations of the diplomatic body accredited to the United States.

That the friendly relations happily subsisting between the Governments you represent and the United States may never be interrupted, should be the wish of all. You do me but justice in supposing that the promotion of this end will constitute a cardinal feature of my official action. In my efforts to accomplish it, I shall be encouraged by the conviction that in no way can I more effectually fulfill the desire, or promote the welfare, of my constituents—the people of the United States.

I take great pleasure in expressing, on this occasion, my earnest wishes for the prosperity of the nations you respectively represent, and for the personal happiness and renown of those who preside over them.

To yourself, sir, and to other members of the diplomatic body, I desire to offer, with my sincere acknowledgments for the kind feeling employed in your address, the assurance of my personal esteem and cordial good wishes.

Gen. Jackson is going home to kill two monsters there—John Bull and Balie Peyton—who he will not find it so easy to thrust into his breeches pockets, as the bill regulating the currency," says a violent whig paper. Perhaps he won't, but the following appears as though one of the parties did not like the looks of the old General's waistbands so near his district:—

"We are authorized to state that Balie Peyton, one of the Representatives in Congress from the State of Tennessee, declines to be considered a candidate for the next Congress."—National Intelligencer.

The War goes merrily on between the New York Express and Courier and Enquirer. The following is the last crack of the Express's whip upon the back of the Courier:—

"Among men of business, groceries, and public houses, we have not a doubt that this journal has a much larger circulation than the Courier. But in grog holes and infamous places we yield the palm, as all other journals must, to the sapient Editor."

"We understand that the author of 'Living Without Means,' is engaged upon a satirical work, touching upon some of the prominent hobbies of the day. This is the way to treat them—laugh at 'em—squib 'em—ridicule 'em, if you would make people sensible of their folly—these are the weapons that wisdom would designate for the attack—not the falsehood, blackguardism, and violence adopted by block-heads who don't know enough to tell why an old man is bald."

"We copy the following just compliment from the New Hampshire Patriot:—

"The Washington Globe is now the handsomest paper which comes to our table. It is printed on a large elegant sheet of thick white paper, and on a new type. Every body knows its columns have ever been supplied with matter; and as regards both matter and manner, it is unquestionably the first political paper in the country."

The Texas Telegraph of the 27th of January, contains the following announcement of a marriage:—

"On Yesterday evening, by the Honorable Judge Farley, John G. Welschmayer, Secretary of the Texas Rail, Navigation and Banking Company, to Mrs. Mary Andrews, widow of the late Mr. R. Andrews, who was killed at the Battle of Compton."

Marriage Brokers.—A late London paper contains an advertisement, in which it is announced that a married gentleman of the highest respectability and connections, has opened two establishments, at some distance from each other, called the matrimonial alliance—one of which is conducted by himself, to give interviews to gentlemen, and the other by his wife for the same purpose, exclusively for the ladies.

At the Tremont Miss Tree, who continues to be received by undiminished audiences, will appear as Viola in the Twelfth Night, and the Youthful Queen, in which she is as charming as in any part she personates. Owing to the crowded state of our political docket, we have hardly been able to notice the "Wrecker's Daughter," which was brought out last week. No piece during the season has been cast with equal strength. To say nothing of Miss Tree, Mr. Barry's Black Norris; Field's Robert, and Gilbert's Wolf, were powerfully executed. The succession of horrors, however, although ultimately ending happily for those in the drama who deserve it, is somewhat too unmitigated. The music is excellent, and efficiently executed by the orchestra.

Lion Theatre.—The varied and gay entertainment to-night is for the benefit of the fair sylph of the establishment, Miss Louisa Johnson. The beaux and belles must turn out strong to make up for the old arrears; for her last benefit, owing to adverse influences, was not very productive in that sterling ore which gladdeneth the heart.

The Three Experiments of Living at the National again to-night—people will find out how it is done by and by. Mr Webster intends to make an experiment in this way, as he passes through New York, by trying the effects of a good dinner at the expense of his friends.

John A. Soares is the man for ye, at 82, Court street, if you want your astral, or other lamps, repaired, cleaned, &c., or your locks, or block-tin ware mended. He is a clever, obliging man, and will execute all orders faithfully.

A Distinguished Stranger.—An infant was found in the upper part of New York and carried to the Arms House on the 4th of March, and booked as Martin Van Buren, in honor of the day.

The New Era says, that it is rumored the manager of a N. Y. theatre, offered Mr Henry Russell, the gentleman who gave a Concert at the Temple on Wednesday evening, $10,000 for one season.

It is estimated that there are about one thousand boys, from twelve to sixteen years of age, in New York, who are constantly prowling about the streets, without parents or guardians who exercise any control over them.

Hospital Money.—By an amendment to the Harbor bill $150,000 was appropriated to cover the expense of suspending the Seamen's Hospital tax.

Florida Delegate.—Charles Downing, Esq. of St. Augustine, has been nominated to supply the place of Mr White, as delegate in Congress from Florida.

LATER FROM EUROPE.

By the Westchester and Oxford, from Liverpool at New York, dates to the 3d of Feb. have been received; and by the Sylvia de Grasse from Havre, at the same port, Paris papers to 1st of February.

Debt Due the United States.—A Royal ordinance authorizes the payment of the 5th instalment of the debt due the United States, recognized by the treaty of the 4th July 1831. The amount of this payment, with interest, is 4,229,999 fr. 90c.

There was a rumor current in Paris on the 30th of January, that Mendizabal was about to visit England, there to negotiate for an auxiliary force of 10,000 men and certain sums of money for their equipment and subsistence, in return for which England was to be put in permanent possession of the Island of Cuba, and to hold St. Sebastian and Passages until the amount advanced should be reimbursed.

The death of Major Henry Lee, of Virginia, author of the Life of Napoleon, and American editor of the new English paper established in Paris, is announced in Gallego's Messenger. It took place on Monday, Jan. 30th.

Parliament.—Parliament opened on Tuesday the 31st January. The Reformers were in high spirits.

The opening of Parliament was by commission—the Lord Chancellor read the King's speech. It is a mere repetition of the common-place sentences which usually compose his majesty's address on such occasions, with the exception of a recommendation to the House of Lords of an early renewal of inquiries into the operation of the act permitting the establishment of joint-stock banks.

The address in answer to the speech was moved by the Earl of Fingall, in the House of Lords, and seconded by Lord St. Albans. It was, as usual, an echo to the speech.

The Duke of Wellington said he had never heard a speech from the throne, or an address in answer, less liable to objection.

Peers.—Ministers have been creating three new Peers. The creations embrace Mr Portman (son in law of the Earl of Harrowood) one of our wealthiest commoners; Mr Hanbury, the brewer; and Mr Fraser, a lineal descendant of Lord Lovat, who was beheaded for treason in 1745, and whose family were then attainted.

A very prominent topic of discussion and comment in the papers, is the seizure of a British merchant vessel, the Vixen, on the coast of Circassia, in the Black Sea, by a Russian man-of-war. The anti-ministerial papers make a great outcry about it, and call upon the government to declare war against Russia at once.

The influenza is raging throughout the three kingdoms. The French Chamber of Deputies has been so violently attacked with the influenza that business was stopped. Several of the minor theatres in Paris were closed, so many of the actors and actresses being laid up with the epidemic.

Missing Whalers.—The Lords of the Treasury have issued a circular, offering to pay £300 to each of the first five English or Scotch vessels which sail before the 5th of February, carrying extra provisions, provided they make the best of their way across the Atlantic, and reach the edge of the ice to the southward of 55 lat.

The Dunkirk journals give a deplorable account of the state of the seamen and fishermen's families in that maritime city.

Agricultural and Commercial Bank of Ireland.—The liabilities are nearly cleared off, and the assets of the bank, which amount to £400,000, are in course of collection.

Fifteen persons, who were at the Peel Banquet at Glasgow have since died from the effects of the prevailing epidemic.

A French paper says that the Duke of Cumberland and Prince George were suffering at Berlin from the grippé, with which it is stated upwards of 40,000 persons of that capital are afflicted.

A bathing establishment has been carried away by a water-spout at Martinique, and all the bathers, some of them persons of distinction, have perished.

The Count Luchesi Palli, the husband of the Duchess de Berri, has been presented at the Austrian Court.

Fifty Spanish emigrant monks have just arrived at Brussels.

Lord Brougham is said to have withdrawn his name from the new University.

The Straitsburg prisoners have been acquitted.

Spain.—Letters from St. Sebastian, of the 7th inst., report favorably of the position of affairs there; Ribeiro's division of 6,000 men was daily expected.

Barcelona has again been visited with the horrors of popular tumult, but by the firmness and prudence of General Pareo, the military commandant, order was re-established, temporarily at least, if not permanently. The hostile armies had made no movement since the relief of Bilbao.

Advices from Bayonne, of the fourteenth inst., confirm previous accounts respecting the attack on the Carlists.

Bayonne, Jan. 17.—The latest accounts from Pampluna state that desertion to the Carlists from the French Legion has, after a momentary pause attributable to the exertions of Gen. Conrad, recommenced, and that to a most alarming extent. Scarcely a day passes that from fifty to one hundred men, too often headed by their officers do not leave their quarters for the factious outposts where they are well received, and embodied in the Pretender's regiment.

From the Globe of March 9.

Official.—Appointments by the President, by the advice and consent of the Senate—

Joel R. Poinsett, of South Carolina, to be Secretary of War.

George M. Dallas, of Pennsylvania, to be Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary to the Court of his Majesty the Emperor of all the Russias.

Henry Wheaton, to be Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary at the Court of his Majesty the King of Prussia.

William H. Haywood, of North Carolina, to be Chargé d'Affaires to the King of Belgium.

Alice La Branche, of Louisiana, to be Chargé d'Affaires to the Republic of Texas.

William W. Chew, of Pennsylvania, to be Secretary of the Legation of the United States to the Court of his Majesty the Emperor of all the Russias.

Heman Lowry, to be Marshal for the District of Vermont.

Abraham Van Buren, to be Secretary under the 6th section of the act to re-organize the General Land Office, approved the 4th of July, 1836.

John Bell, to be Surveyor of Public Lands acquired by the treaty with the Chickasaw Indians.

A letter to the Journal of Commerce says that N. P. Willis will probably go out as Secretary of Legation for Prussia or Austria.

The Texian Ministers, Messrs Hunt and Wheaton, have, it is said, been duly accredited by the President. A diplomatic intercourse has, therefore, been established with the Republic of Texas, and her independence is, thereby, fully acknowledged.

Mr King, of Alabama, has been offered the nomination of Minister to Austria, but whether he will accept it or not is doubtful.

Another Vessel Lost.—The brig Sarah Williams arrived at this port on Saturday from Cienfuegos, brought in Capt. Bryant, officers and crew of brig Hope, of and from New Castle, Me., 16 days out, for New Orleans.—The Sarah Williams fell in with them on the 8th inst. in lat. 39 36, lon 71, both topmasts gone and leaking badly. She was a new copper fastened vessel, on her first voyage, in ballast. Wm Rankins, seaman, of Newcastle, fell from the topmast of the Hope to the deck on the 24th ult., and was instantly killed. The Hope, we understand, was insured in this city.

After a very exciting debate on Saturday, the House voted not to increase the capital stock of the Lowell Rail Road Co., unless the charter was brought under the general law, passed subsequently to the charter.

The Pennsylvania House of Representatives, voted on the 6th inst. to publish 10,000 copies of Gen. Jackson's Farewell Address, and to have it read aloud in their Hall.

A child was burnt to death in Portland last Sunday, by its clothes taking fire while alone in a room. It was two years and a half old.

POLICE COURT.

"As crowded as three in a bed," has long been a saying, to express a very superlative degree of narrow quarters, but if there be any truth in Watchmen, that is but half the number that occupied a room and a bed in Moon street. John Sullivan, who owns a wife and daughter, was a joint tenant with Dennis Donnell, who also possessed precisely the same amount of live property, and the furniture, which was held in common, consisted of one large bed, a table, a few small chairs, a rum-bottle, &c. In the day time, the snug little community lived very harmoniously, but at night there was generally some dispute which of the families should lie at the head of the bed, in genteel style, and which should put up with the accommodation of secondary rank at the foot. Fight after fight occurred, and as poor Sullivan, who had a penchant for the bottle, generally got much more obstreperous than Donnell, the latter was always able to give a much more plausible account to the Watch, and artfully throw all the blame of the row upon the simple Sullivan, who thereby labored under the prejudice of the Charles, whose patience with him was nearly exhausted. On Friday night, another battle was fought, and the shouts of the combatants again brought the Watch upon them, as they struggled in the dark. Both parties were aroused to the utmost power of action, and the fight was a rare one—the rarest on record, with one exception, and not altogether unlike that—videlicet, Colman's account of Master Daw's contest in the paste-board Elephant. The epic in rhyme, and with sufficient exactness, and with more brevity, than our plain prose could do, describes the conflict between Sullivan and Donnell:—

"George persevered;—unable to get out,
The tall man laid about,
And with great force the mighty George assailed;—
Both, in the dark, were now at random fighting,
Huffing and cuffing, kicking, scratching, biting,
Although neither of the combatants prevailed.

It was the strongest precedent by far,
In ancient or in modern story,
Of such a desperate intestine war
Waged in so small a territory!"

As had frequently happened before, Sullivan was able to fight much better than to give a satisfactory reason for so doing—(wherein albeit differed he nought from the great monarchs of the earth as history averreth it)—and so Capt. Tallant captured him, and the next morning, in the name of the Commonwealth, charged him with being a common drunkard. He confessed the liquor, but, by way of qualification, said—"My wife drinks all the time, and is the cause of all my misadventures. The other day she drank up a whole bottle full of nice gin, so that I might not get drunk upon it—so she said. I should not mind the liquor, if she had not such temper when she's tipsy."

This remark was made in presence of his wife, who had come to take his part, and notwithstanding the shame he had cast upon her fame, so anxious was she yet to save him from prison, that she rose and admitted that "it was all her fault that he got into his flurries, and declared that he never did so, but when he had liquor on him."

Court.—That's just what we supposed, and it is for that liquor that he must answer. Say Five Months in the House of Correction.

Wife.—O dear Lord!—Five months for a bit of a man's falling out in his own house!

Sullivan.—Och, niver mind, Mary, I've got a good friend there in Captain Robbins. If he is so kind to me again as he was the last time I was there, I shall have a right comfortable time.

That's a compliment worth having, Captain, and we doubt not, that you will take good heed, that Sullivan's happy anticipations be fully realised.

Sullivan's daughter, apparently about nine years of age, and decent, modest, and intelligent, was present. In deportment she would compare with many who enjoy the most splendid resources and facilities for culture. To find such a child, surrounded by so many morally degrading influences, is but another proof of an over-ruling Providence, that "tempers the wind to the shorn lamb."

Maria Matilda was the musical name of a charming and beautiful young lady, who came to complain against her step-father, James Mitchell, who the night previous had cut her mother in the arm with a knife. He was arrested, and upon an inquiry into his character, it turned out that he was a common drunkard, and he was sent to the House of Correction for three months—a severe punishment than could have been imposed, even if he had cut his wife's both arms, and Maria Matilda's into the bargain.

Samuel Reed was sent into this wicked world, not "half made up," but still there was enough in him, to enable him to add to the wickedness thereof. He had no hands to get a living with, but a lying tongue supplied the defect. The last exercise of this "unruly member," was in getting himself a pair of shoes by falsely pretending, that he was sent after them, another person. Sent to the House of Industry.

Owen Murphy was too frank to deny that he got high, on Friday night, and the Court was too just to let him off without paying a fine of $5.00, and trimmings.

A keg of powder under the bed of a Mr Jones of Spencer Co. Indiana, blew up on the 2d inst. killing three children, destroyed the house, with a thousand dollars in cash.

FROM FLORIDA.

"Santa Fe Bridge, Feb. 25.

An express has just come from the head quarters of Gen. Jesup, ordering that his staff be mustered into service. The express stated that ninety odd Indians have gone in, with Jumper and Alligator. Micapony is still sick. The commander at Fort Drake writes that things progress slowly in regard to the council, but says there is no doubt of an amicable result."

Look out for your Clothes Lines.—We are told that one night last week an article of clothing was purloined from the line of a certain boarding house in this vicinity; and that the said article belonged to a gentleman boarder. Suspicion rested upon a certain individual, and the lawful owner of the stolen articles proceeded to the abode of the suspected individual and without much ceremony requested him to return that shirt. The next night the shirt was returned—probably leaving the criminal in a very shirtless condition!—Mathew Gaz.

MASSACHUSETTS LEGISLATURE.

Saturday, March 11.—In the Senate, Mr Cushing, from the committee on the Judiciary, reported a bill to incorporate the Boston and Providence Steamboat Company, with an amendment, which was adopted; and pending an amendment made by Mr Whitmarsh, the bill was laid upon the table.

The consideration of the amendment to the bill to incorporate the Boston and Providence Steamboat Company, was subsequently resumed. The question on adopting the amendment was taken by yeas and nays and decided in the negative—yeas 8, nays 14. The bill was then passed to be engrossed.

In the House, the bill to incorporate the capital stock of the Boston and Lowell Railroad was taken, the question being on its passage to be engrossed, as amended.
